

Six guests for tour

WYCOMBE WANDERERS, who clinched their fourth Rothmans Isthmian League title in five years with Saturday's 1-0 win over Dagenham, leave for a week's tour to Yugoslavia on Tuesday with six guest players.

The tour party, captained by the Blues last season but chose Keith Mead, is: Tony Ilford instead.
Horseman, John Maskell, Dylan Evans, Mick Holifield, Paul Griffiths, Graham Mackenzie, Dave Alexander, Geoff Anthony, Tim Turl, Ray Eaton, Paul Fuschillo, Derck Harris and Steve Palfrey.

Kenny Swain, a player who spent one dazzling season with Wycombe before signing professional forms for Chelsea, was scheduled to tour but had to pull out earlier this week.

Geoff Anthony has kept close tabs with Wanderers since he left the club after a couple of seasons. He has since played for Slough but left them before the end of the season. He scored two goals in the Blues' friendly against Southend and has been training regularly at Loakes Park.

FREE TRANSFER

Tim Turl has been Slough's regular full-back for several seasons while Ray Eaton toured with Wanderers last year in Cyprus. He was expected to join

Many Wanderers fans will remember full-back Paul Fuschillo. He played in the great team of the Delaney, Powell, Suddaby era, before joining the latter in a move to Second Division Blackpool. Paul then switched to Brighton but after a spell in midfield, was unable to get a regular first-team game and was recently given a free transfer.

Derek Harris and Steve Palfrey are both Loughborough College players. Harris is still studying and has played at Loakes Park on two occasions. Palfrey spent most of the season with Hayes.

Wanderers have arranged two matches on the tour — the second time they have been to Yugoslavia in three years. They play Hadzke Split and then Celektivac on the Isle of Brac.
